

Overview

There is currently a large focus on the need for diversity and inclusion training in the workplace. The staff working with psychiatric patients requests greater education and greater understanding of diversity for appropriate improvement of patient care.

COVID has impacted most everything we do in the medical field, including mental health care. Information on the impact on both patients and healthcare workers is needed as we continue to deal with the pandemic.

Psychopharmacology is an ever changing field with new drugs and pharmaceutical agents requiring frequent education.

The 25th Annual Psychiatric Symposium will be looking at these important topics as we reach this conference's educational milestone.

This activity is intended for psychiatrists, neurologists, family practitioners, internists, hospitalists and residents. It will also meet the educational needs of psychologists, nurses, pharmacists, social workers and counselors working in the mental health field
